Where these figures come from

Demonopol's token metrics sheet. Prices are the sheet's working values, and each round's size is its allocation multiplied by its price. Release terms are quoted as the sheet states them, and every schedule runs from the token generation event. The amount still available in the strategic round is Demonopol's own current figure, and is approximate.

Demonopol makes no promise about what MONO will be worth, at any time. Contributing to a token round can lose you money. The terms of the private round set out the risks in full.
